FLOOD RISK IS REAL

PROTECT YOURSELF, YOUR FAMILY, AND YOUR PROPERTY

Floods are one of the most common natural disasters in the world, and the Lower Green River is at risk of severe flooding.

Floods are dangerous and destructive, threatening our safety, blocking the movement of people and goods, harming the environment, and causing significant damage.

FLOOD RISK MAP

Map depicts flooding expected in the Lower Green River Corridor during a 500-year flood, with river flow measured at 18,800 cubic feet per second (cfs). This level of flooding has a 6% chance of occurring at least once during a 30-year period.

PROTECTION TAKES PLANNING

The King County Flood Control District is considering developing a Lower Green River Corridor Flood Hazard Management Plan to reduce flood risks in the Lower Green River Corridor. The area is home to approximately 50,000 people, 135,000 jobs, warehouses, farms, parks, and natural areas that sustain threatened salmon and other animals.

WHAT DO YOU WANT IN FLOOD PROTECTION?

A draft programmatic environmental impact statement is available for review and comment. The study analyzes three different approaches to reducing flood risk and providing integrated floodplain management in the Lower Green River Corridor while achieving other important benefits.
